

--ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention relates to an elongated, preferably cylindrical plunger located in a chamber of a cartridge gun for the expression and dosed application of a free-flowing, paste-like substance. The exterior of the plunger comprises two seals that are preferably located in a peripheral groove. To express the contents of fixed cartridges, the plunger is equipped with an additional peripheral sealing ring for sealing purposes.--